A: Use following 2 commands in order to rename your files: $ mv foo[^Q: Python importing package with "dir(package)" gives error So, I am trying to make a program that creates a "project" that saves information to a directory after the user inputs the name of the project. I have followed some tutorials on creating a package, but am having issues. I installed package as the code suggests and I think it is installed correctly, but when I go into the project directory and type in dir(myproject) I get: >>> dir(myproject) Traceback (most recent call last): File "", line 1, in dir(myproject) TypeError:'module' object is not callable So I know the directory can find my project
