Kaleye is an image mixer, rich of settings and features, that uses your pictures, videos, and camera stream to combine them in new shapes. Main features Shape: the traditional kaleidoscopes will reflect an image in shape of exxagon, or other regular polygons. Kaleye offers a wide variety of completely customizable shapes, even irregular and asymmetrical, to break the perception of a global pattern and create natural and organic structures. Particles: Kaleye let you to explode a picture in particles and blend them in several ways with the main mirrored subject. This feature can be used to enrich in details and effects the picture in unpredictable ways, altering the material perception. Fractals: it's possible to obtain recursive figures combining the original image with its already processed version, to process it again in an endless loop. You can chose what part of the picture will be the first generation of the fractal and wich part the following ones, and import costumized filter shapes. Kaleye can also create simple animations interpolating user-defined keyframes, or explore a given folder of pictures automatically, moving cameras randomly and changing reflection shapes.Main usages Brainstormign: Kaleye combines the images that you provide in unexpected ways, for this reason it is a good tool to prototype characters, environments or artifacts with specified features and materials. For example, you could get suggestions to design new robots shooting metal compoents and filtering them with Kaleye; or you can create solarpunk buildings adding vegetation particles to modern transformed glass structures. Digital kaleidoscope: Kaleye can digitally simulate a kaleidoscope, creating abstract geometrical figures and light effects to give a sense of peace and order. The traditionals stones and shells in analogic kaleidoscopes are replaced with particles: there are a lot of parameters to manage them and the way in wich they blend with the main image. Flusso perpetuo: grazie alla sua modalità automatica, una volta definita una cartella di foto interessanti con un certo tema, Kaleye provvede a rielaborarle in un flusso animato spontaneo e sempre nuovo, che può essere usato per intrattenere, arricchire un ambiente e ispirare. Perpetual flow: thanks to its automatic mode, once you have defined

Golems Constructor is a sandbox game that lets you grow as a master builder. Start out as a poor farmer and work your way to become a wealthy noble. Produce goods and sell them in the market to achieve your goals. Build houses and castles with your golems. As you become more wealthy you will unlock other sandbox elements, like animals, creatures and devices. Pre-requested features: - Spells - Spell casting will be the main feature of the game. You will be able to use magic to speed up your building and help you with your tasks. To cast a spell you will need energy, which will be generated by your working golems. You have two spell slots, each can be used once per day. Only a few spells are available, but you will be able to upgrade them later with money. - Structures - Structures will be the second main feature. There will be dozens of different building types. Some will help you with your other tasks, some will grant you more bonuses. So choose wisely! Each structure gives you an amount of resources every day. You can leave your structures unattended to have the golems create it for you. - Animals - Animals will be the third main feature. There will be animals like chickens, cows and pigs, which will give you food or other useful resources. You can breed them by stacking different types of animals, but it's time consuming. You will also find some creatures that can't be collected, like the mysterious red eye and the dark wizard. - Mines - You will have a certain number of slots for digging, but you will be able to grow your own ore. Once you become a powerful mayor you will be able to build a large mining center with multiple levels. Don't worry, there's still plenty of crafting without relying on mining. - Crafting - crafting is a big part of the golems constructor. You will be able to create items to help you around the world, like a horse, a wagon or a train. To craft an item you will need two blocks from different resources. Each item will have different recipes. So you will have to choose which blocks you want to use to craft it. Sandbox Elements: - blocks - You will be able to create blocks to help you. Wood will make fire, stone will make building materials, iron will create golems and other crafting devices. - items - Many things will be made from items, like the green hook that will be useful to haul your c9d1549cdd

Hellsatan Dear Editor of IW, as you are asking for oil reviews, here I am with a personal one for you. I base it on simple tangible facts and not what others might tell you. I spent close to half my life living in Kuwait among Bedouins since 1981 and the decades since. The Arabs in Kuwait, are among the most welcoming and hospitable people the world has ever seen, and I always got treated as if I was a man of honor. Till when I left Kuwait, or when I went there I did not offend anybody. Maybe even today I wouldn't cause trouble because these Bedouins are the Middle East's own and best angels in many ways. Although, there are many of them who are out for themselves and would not like to see a stranger work in their place. These are the them they are so proud of. I have been to the Far East and South East Asia. I have been to Indonesia, Australia, New Zealand, India, Pakistan, Nepal, Burma, Thailand, Cambodia, Sri Lanka, Singapore, Malaysia, Philippines, China, Vietnam and I mean big cities. Many of these cities people equate to three of the world's top 10 cities, but in the Middle East, they are just smaller cities or big villages. Of course, you would not believe me I know since you think that I, being a born and raised American, could never become close to the Arabs/Middle Eastern people. This kind of attitude towards the Arabs hurts me personally because I am old enough to remember a time when we were all one family, of which none were Arabs. If somebody from the West wants to work in the Middle East, we all welcomed that person, hands down. I only say this because I'm a veteran of economics there for the better part of three decades. Don't get me wrong, I am close to them, see them everyday, I speak their language, we understand each other, we know how to get around each other and we are a good match. If they do like an American, I'm sure they wouldn't mind with me, no matter where from, I just want to be a good listener and a good student of their culture. So until next time and Please, don't get the wrong think I'm trying to be generous with my hospitality for you to come here and screw up our relationship with them. I speak of these things because I just learned from a friend that you are trying to finance a 24-hour news program for the

"All this stuff that you're taking money from us and not giving it to us is just wrong." But the lawsuits have not succeeded in forcing the state to raise Medicaid reimbursement for the services provided by Medicaid providers, and the Department of Health has so far turned down CMS's proposal to increase how much Medicaid pays for reimbursement. Instead of reinvesting the revenue, the state has generally diverted it to other programs or to local governments. "We're essentially left to fight private insurers and private hospitals in court for additional, ongoing funding to pay for their services
